

Università Politecnica delle Marche

The Department of Agricultural, Food and Environmental Sciences (D3A) of Università Politecnica delle Marche, located in Ancona (IT), deals with teaching and research on subjects related to sustainable innovation in agriculture, food and environment, with an applied portion developed in modern and well equipped labs and in a list of experimental fields, in which our students apply the knowledge acquired during courses, internship and final thesis, interacting with professionals (scientists, chairs of public bodies, agronomists, enologists, environmental experts, food technologists) that shares their own skills in specific fields.

List of courses :

- BSc Agricultural sciences and technology (with branches in Agricultural sciences and Viticulture and enology) (STA)
- BSc Forest and Environment Sciences (SFA)
- BSc Food Science and Technology (STAL)
- BSc Innovative Agricultural Systems (SAI)
- MSc Land and Agricultural Sciences (branches Plant production and protection and Social farming) (SAT)
- MSc Forest, Soils and Landscape Sciences (FORESPA)
- MSc Food and beverage innovation and management (FABIAM)

sustainability

organic agriculture

IPM

social farming

food waste management

plant breeding

viticulture

consumer tests

ACADEMIC CONTACT

- Erasmus contact:
Prof. Raffaele Zanoli,
head of D3A International relationships
r.zanoli@staff.univpm.it

- Erasmus administrative contact:
erasmus.incoming@univpm.it,
erasmus.outgoing@univpm.it,
internship@univpm.it

Deadline for application:
Full Year or Autumn semester 15th June;
Spring semester October 31

« I love the interactions among students and with professors, this is a very challenging environment for our future work »

